FRIDAY, JUNE 30, 1916.

Mr. J. Dan Mangum and Mr. Aubrey Noland, two of our Johnson Rifles boys, have promised to write us the news of the happenings in camp. We gladly publish their communications this week, and hope to have something from each of them every week.

Additional men are being enlisted for our Union company. Fifteen new men left here Wednesday for Camp Moore. And the recruiting office is daily open here now for the purpose of enlisting yet more men. It is a stern business, yet a necessary one. It brings this war business right down to our own door. But the fact that our young men are offering themselves to their country in this crisis is a hopeful sign. The spirit of battle is not yet dead. It will be a fearful thing for us all should it ever die. A nation without fighters would perish from the earth in the present state of civilization. There is one very encouraging thing to be noted, however: The spirit that is manifesting itself is not the spirit of conquest, territorial expansion nor desire for gold and silver mines. That spirit, leading the nations of the past, has led to success of a certain kind, but it was a success that led to ultimate ruin. The movement our country is making today is one in the interest of defense; it seeks to protect our men. It goes further: It seeks the good of our neighbors. We would not have them give up their country, but behave themselves and govern themselves under the rules of civilization. President Wilson's attitude now is and heretofore has been along these lines. May our people continue to walk in that way. It is the only safe way and is a step nearer the long-sought epoch when nations and individuals will come into a lasting peace.

LIFE'S STERN LAW.

A traveler starting upon a journey across a desert prepares for the journey if he has wisdom. He must carry water, food, a compass, a light tent to ward off the scalding sun by day and the sudden chill that comes by night. It requires a thoughtful preparation to make the journey in safety. If the water gives out he is lost, if the food supply is insufficient, calamity ensues, if blindness seizes him, or the compass be lost, there will be a weary wandering that will lead to death. If sudden sickness seize upon him, there is no remedy for his ills. To state the matter in another fashion, the successful journey depends upon each one of many things and must needs call into use every one of these necessary things.

Life's journey is much like this. It is not that a man fails in all things, but in one thing. He does not have to lack everything. To lack one thing will spell ruin for him in that it will cause his fall by the wayside.

The loss of health, the loss of sight or hearing will prove sufficient to cause a falling out of the race. It is a stern law that faces the earthly pilgrim. He cannot afford to stop; that means death. He cannot afford to hesitate, that may mean ruin. The machine must be kept in adjustment, the wheels must turn, the production must come, the sales must be made, the expenses must be met, for to fail in any one thing means the loss of all.

The bread winner for the family cannot afford to be sick. He cannot afford to loiter along the way. He must go on and on and on to the last rim of the journey. The business man, harassed by reverses, unforeseen barriers and mistaken confidence cannot afford to stand still and search for the defect. He must find it, but find it without stopping. He must reconstruct certain departments, yet all the while, continue conducting all departments.

All of which goes to prove that life is a serious matter; preparation of incalculable value and faint-heartedness a thing to be shunned as one would shun the devil.

BARACA CLASS WESTSIDE CHURCH SENDS GREETINGS

The Baraca class of the Westside Baptist church, Rev. J. B. Bozeman pastor, has sixteen of its number in Co. E, and on Sunday morning, through the president of the class, Mr. W. Lester Davis, the following telegram was sent to the boys in camp at Camp Moore:

"Baraca class of Westside Baptist church send greeting of love, honor and prayers to all the boys who were ever members of our class."

It is quite a remarkable occurrence that out of the total 82 men who first left with the "Johnson Rifles" that 16 of them were from one class. The class is quite a large one, and will keep in close touch with those of their number who have offered themselves to their country in this time of urgent need.

To Our Friends and The Public!

We announce that Lieutenant John Hollingsworth who has for years been one of our most trusted men, has in response to the call of his country gone with the Johnson Rifles to the Mobilization Camp at Columbia and if the need arises will go to the border and into service in Mexico. We regret to see him go, and we as well as his friends will miss him, but we hope his stay as well as that of all our boys will be short, and of course his place in our business will be held open for him, and in the meantime we wish to assure all his friends and our customers that your interests will be taken care of as usual. We will all exert ourselves to serve you just as he has always served you, carefully, faithfully and punctually.

For the Summer we have with us, in addition to our regular old men, Mr. Harold James and Mr. Macbeth Wagon, who will be glad to serve all their friends and will exert themselves to meet the approval of the public who likes faithful and prompt attention and good service.

We respectfully solicit a larger share than ever of your valued orders for any and everything to eat for Man or Beast. We are making special efforts to supply you with Food Supplies suitable for the hot weather.
